

BUDGET ONLY THING OMITTED BY MAYOR

Buses, Flappers, Schools and Cocktails Discussed at Hearing.

GLOVES AND FARES TOO

Likewise Rockefeller, Gary Schools and Transit Commission.

SCHOOLGIRLS ENJOY IT

But $361,000,000 Business Gets Only Five Minutes at Last Statutory Hearing.

Municipal buses, the five cent fare, John D. Rockefeller, white gloves, the Gary school system, flappers, cocktails and the Transit Commission were discussed yesterday by the Board of Estimate at the first statutory hearing of the proposed $361,000,000 budget.

The budget itself was not discussed at all, except for five minutes when the clerk read a list of departments and estimates.

Twenty girls from Wadsworth High School, students of civil government, who had their first lesson in Hyman's civics Wednesday, returned yesterday and brought about thirty more, all eager for knowledge, so that the Board of Estimate chamber in City Hall presented a holiday appearance.

"Welcome, ladies," said the Mayor with a bright smile.

"Not ladies, flappers," suggested one of the other city rulers. "You mean flappers, don't you?"

Raps Desk With New Gavel.

"That's out of order," said the Mayor, rapping on the desk with a new gavel substituted for the one he broke Wednesday trying to quell a disturbance.

Before getting down to the regular routine business of abusing the Transit Commission Mr. Hyman referred again to the matter of Scheffelin & Co.'s wine list.

"I would like to know if Scheffelin & Co. have a family of their own," he said.

"If you can tell me where I can get some French vermouth I'll appreciate it," said one of the others. "I've got a sore throat."

There being no taxpayers present to interrupt the proceeding with questions about the budget, the Mayor presently began as follows: "I notice there are headlines in the newspapers because some one bought a bus or two in order to get to work some poor unemployed fellow. If the Legislature had permitted the city to have its way no one would have been running buses except the city and we would have made money on the five cent fare instead of some one else."

Tells All About Schools.

The civics class got this in their note books. Then the Mayor continued.

"The people are going to have them and they are going to drive out of office the high paid transit commissioners, including the latest acquisition to the cortege, Mr. J. Shenn. It's too bad the people must pay those gentlemen in order that they may get seats in the subway. Those gentlemen are serving the interests, not the people."

Some one remarked that the meeting had gone through without a single question and no one expected from the Mayor. He suggested that the Mayor should be presented with a pair of white gloves, like judges in England, and that the Mayor should be known as the Mayor of the White Gloves.

The board met in executive session after the public hearing closed to consider the budget. The budget has to be cut out before the board can vote on it. The city's assessed valuation for 1923 is $1,000,000,000.

It was learned yesterday that most of the new positions, such as the $9,000 assistant to the Mayor, probably will be cut out before the budget is finally adopted by midnight, October 31.

Besides the Mayor, most of the members of the Board of Estimate received special plums in the revision of the tentative budget last week. The Citizens Union called attention to these lucrative jobs, which were added to the payroll at private meetings of the board.

THREE FLIERS KILLED; TWO AT NAVAL BASE

Lieuts. Armstrong and Ericson Fall at Hampton Roads.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD, NORTOLK, Va., Oct. 26.—Lieut. E. L. Ericson of New York and Lieut. Armstrong of Texas were killed at the Hampton Roads naval base to-day when their airplane fell 800 feet.

The plane had been up about twenty minutes when it suddenly took a nose dive and crashed into the water. Both fliers were badly mangled. Both feet of one were cut off.

Naval officials cannot account for the accident, but they believe the plane went down and the pilot was unable to guide his machine safely to earth.

Lieut. Ericson was to have commanded a division of six torpedo planes in a navy day demonstration to-morrow. A ball in honor of Capt. E. Yarnall, commanding the air station, to-morrow night, and other naval festivities have been indefinitely postponed.

RECORD DEMAND FOR STAMPS.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Regulations by postmasters for postage stamps this month have broken all records. 2,142,265 stamps had been ordered since October 1. Postmasters in their regulations have indicated that business is on the increase, especially in industrial centers.

FOUND ANYTHING?

If so, see if it is in the Lost and Found columns of to-day's New York Herald.

LORENZ IS EXHAUSTED; OPERATION A FAILURE

Obligated to Quit After Twenty Minutes' Work on Girl.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD, THURSTON, Oct. 26.—While attending the annual convention of the Eastern Homeopathic Medical Association here to-day, Dr. Adolf Lorenz, noted Albanian surgeon, conducted a clinic at the Orthopedic Hospital, during which he performed an operation on Margaret A. Skino, 9 years old.

After the clinic, Dr. Lorenz admitted the operation was not successful, although it may result in the improved physical condition of the child, who was afflicted with congenital dislocation of the hip. Dr. Lorenz was compelled to stop the operation from exhaustion after working twenty minutes. It was completed with the assistance of Dr. Joseph L. Nevins of New York city. Dr. Lorenz said that from a strictly medical standpoint the operation was not a success, owing to the fact the child was too old.

"Nature will take care of you," was the remark made by Dr. Lorenz to patients whom he did not consider fit subjects for an operation.

MRS. GIBSON'S STORY GIVES FINAL CLEWS IN HALL CASE

Continued from First Page.

A few hours from State troopers and from county detectives.

The time of the crime is a point on which the authorities purposely are being careful. According to Mrs. Gibson it was about 9:30, but there is reason to believe the actual hour was much later. Mrs. Gibson told the correspondent for The New York Herald that she had never set the hour at 9:30 and that in fact "it was not until all night that night."

Not until the actual time at which Mrs. Gibson witnessed the murder is known will it be possible to gauge the strength of evidence on which the case is based. There is only one seemingly perfect alibi, that of Henry Stevens. About all the others in the case, including James Mills, the sexton who was charged with the murder, the practically unsupported word of the person most interested.

The one man of which this is not true is Ralph V. M. Corlaine, vestryman, and believed at one time to have been an admirer of Mrs. Mills. Corlaine's alibi is supported by the woman member of the church whom he met that night after he left the Y. M. C. A. and took her to her home. He says he left the Y. M. C. A. a little after 10, and that he landed Mrs. Catherine Russell at her home about twenty minutes after that hour. He may be asked to repeat his story to-morrow to Mott, who has not heard it, and to tell also of his motor car which burned up on the road to Trenton one night after the inquiry had commenced.

It was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

MRS. GIBSON'S STORY GIVES FINAL CLEWS IN HALL CASE

Continued from First Page.

A few hours from State troopers and from county detectives.

The time of the crime is a point on which the authorities purposely are being careful. According to Mrs. Gibson it was about 9:30, but there is reason to believe the actual hour was much later. Mrs. Gibson told the correspondent for The New York Herald that she had never set the hour at 9:30 and that in fact "it was not until all night that night."

Not until the actual time at which Mrs. Gibson witnessed the murder is known will it be possible to gauge the strength of evidence on which the case is based. There is only one seemingly perfect alibi, that of Henry Stevens. About all the others in the case, including James Mills, the sexton who was charged with the murder, the practically unsupported word of the person most interested.

The one man of which this is not true is Ralph V. M. Corlaine, vestryman, and believed at one time to have been an admirer of Mrs. Mills. Corlaine's alibi is supported by the woman member of the church whom he met that night after he left the Y. M. C. A. and took her to her home. He says he left the Y. M. C. A. a little after 10, and that he landed Mrs. Catherine Russell at her home about twenty minutes after that hour. He may be asked to repeat his story to-morrow to Mott, who has not heard it, and to tell also of his motor car which burned up on the road to Trenton one night after the inquiry had commenced.

It was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

MRS. GIBSON'S STORY GIVES FINAL CLEWS IN HALL CASE

Continued from First Page.

A few hours from State troopers and from county detectives.

The time of the crime is a point on which the authorities purposely are being careful. According to Mrs. Gibson it was about 9:30, but there is reason to believe the actual hour was much later. Mrs. Gibson told the correspondent for The New York Herald that she had never set the hour at 9:30 and that in fact "it was not until all night that night."

Not until the actual time at which Mrs. Gibson witnessed the murder is known will it be possible to gauge the strength of evidence on which the case is based. There is only one seemingly perfect alibi, that of Henry Stevens. About all the others in the case, including James Mills, the sexton who was charged with the murder, the practically unsupported word of the person most interested.

The one man of which this is not true is Ralph V. M. Corlaine, vestryman, and believed at one time to have been an admirer of Mrs. Mills. Corlaine's alibi is supported by the woman member of the church whom he met that night after he left the Y. M. C. A. and took her to her home. He says he left the Y. M. C. A. a little after 10, and that he landed Mrs. Catherine Russell at her home about twenty minutes after that hour. He may be asked to repeat his story to-morrow to Mott, who has not heard it, and to tell also of his motor car which burned up on the road to Trenton one night after the inquiry had commenced.

It was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going over the records in the court house here and then, with State troopers inspecting the Phillips farm and traversing every inch of the grounds, the two bodies, the old house and the barn and the wells, and he went to the crabapple tree beneath which the bodies were found.

He was a busy day, going